ABOUT THE PROGRAMME

The MARC 21 format is one of the popular standard exchange formats which adhere to ISO 2709 standards and is used in most countries globally. Its main purpose is for exchanging and sharing data in machine-readable form. Standardisation in the exchange formats and structure of a database is essential to facilitate the exchange of data efficiently and effectively between the libraries.

The adoption of different standards creates incompatibility in exchanging data which acts as a major barrier in the use of bibliographic and related information. Format compatibilities are necessary for computerised cataloguing data and these are being standardised by the ISO.

Knowledge in the MARC21 format is important as a pre-requisite in the creation of catalogue records using the RDA cataloguing standard.
